

Information = Power (and Funding!)

Are your local waters impacted by:

- Agricultural impacts?
- Runoff from developed areas?
- Failing septic systems?
- Eroding streambanks?

Find the funding sources that you need to support vital protection and restoration work in your watershed!

EPA has developed a searchable, interactive website to support watershed stakeholders' efforts to secure funding to implement watershed protection and restoration projects.

The website offers users access to a database of approximately 100 programs offering financial assistance (grants, loans, and cost sharing) specially geared towards watershed-related projects including green infrastructure, integrated pest management, climate change, and outreach/education projects.

Users input their program specifications and/or topic keywords to generate a list of applicable funding programs. They can then explore the details of each program, including:

- Contact information
- Funding history
- Typical past award amounts
- Eligibility requirements
- Application deadlines
- Matching funds/criteria requirements

This website does not present sources that offer only technical assistance. In addition, it does not contain information about small, site-specific federal sources or non-federal sources. EPA's Office of Water will be updating the website on an ongoing basis.

Other Funding Sources:

To help users identify additional sources of funding, the website also links to extensive listings of funding-related websites for public and private sector sources. Click on the "Other Funding Information" link under "More Funding Sources" to check it out.
